

My Proposal for the Moon and Beyond

Part III

By Ciarán Handley

20th September 2018

My Proposal for the Moon and Beyond Chapter 1

*For a business deal to go ahead between two parties,
each party must have something to offer the other*

Something of value.

Each has something to offer the other

That is how a business deal works.

In this case I hold the strongest cards. I hold the technologies which, even though I withhold my key technologies, still make me the strongest player.

In addition it is by my decision which countries go Golden Age and which do not. By my working with nations or denying my aid to nations I can cause the rise or fall of nations. My knowledge is at that level.

Which makes me by far and away the strongest player.

However due to the gross incompetence of governments this hasn't registered with them at any level. Golden Age doesn't come into it for them. Ascension doesn't come into it at any level for them. The threat of annihilation from the Borg doesn't come into it at any level for them. My knowledge, the knowledge to transform nations doesn't come into it for them. They see only what they wish to see. Which is nothing at all. No words can describe the incompetence.

*For a business deal to go ahead between two parties,
each party must have something to offer the other*

Something of value.

I have knowledge with trillions. But I am broke. However government's knowledge of Space Flight is Stone Age. I read recently that America plans to put man on Mars by 2033. With Impulse Drive I could be on Mars in two years. I'd build the rocket in a fucking shed.

So I have knowledge. But no money.

Governments have money. But they do not have my knowledge.

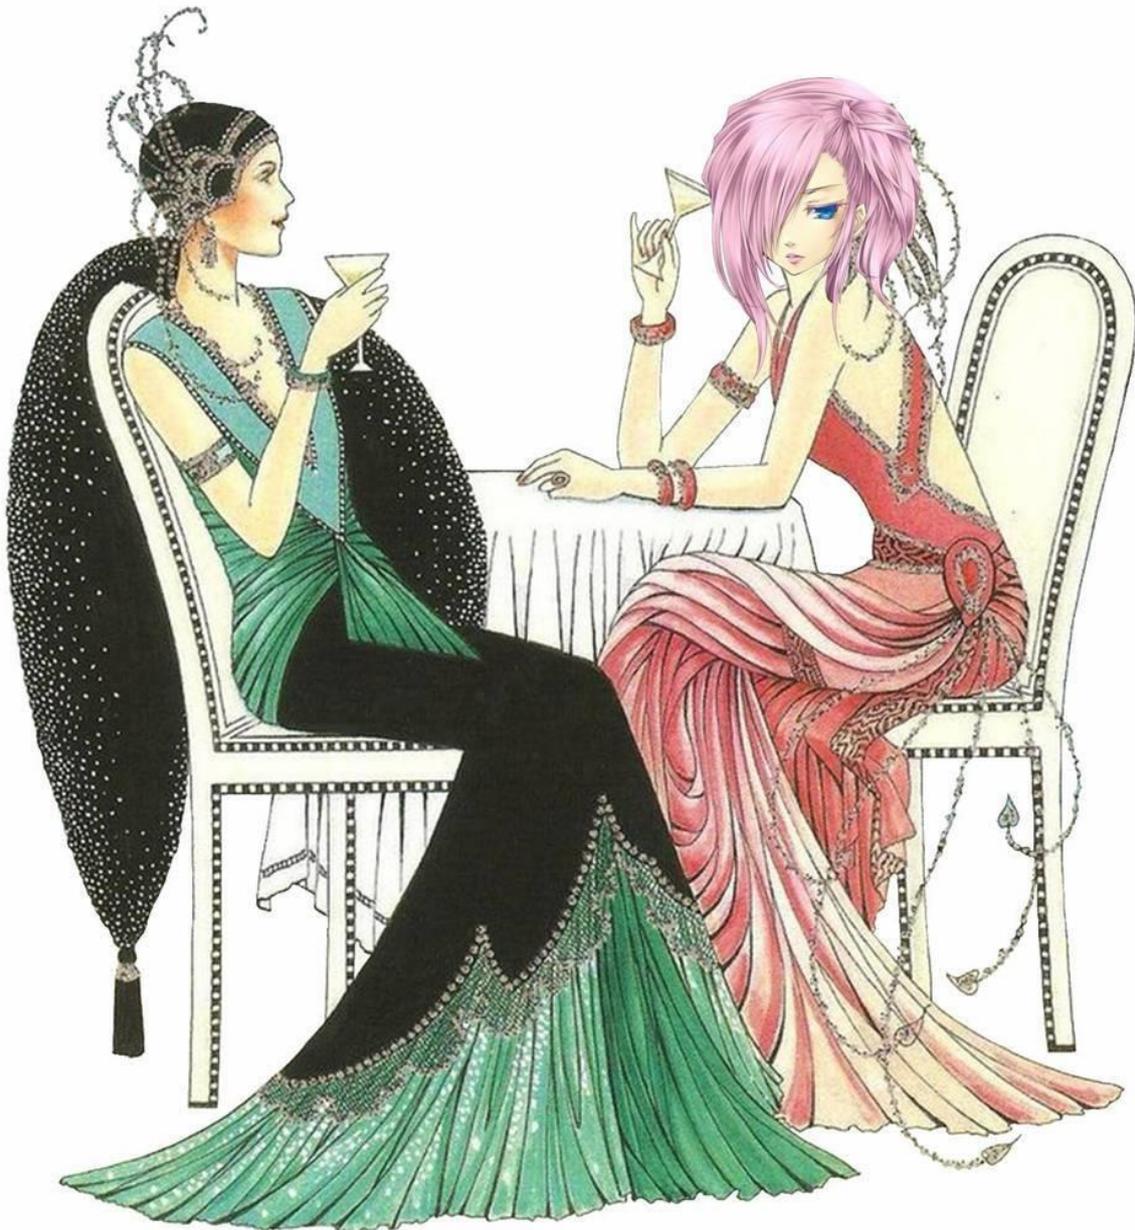

So that's the deal. My knowledge. Worth trillions.

But I'll offer it at a good price. Billions.

It's worth trillions. But I'm offering it for billions.

Why make trillions when we can make...billions

I could only agree to the deal if I could set up and drive Ireland's bid in the race from Ireland. Which would only be viable either if I was Taoiseach or if the Irish government agreed to let me work completely independently of the Irish government.

Probably easiest to just make me Taoiseach

The Irish Space agency I set up would have the advantage of me. The Nth Degree. The greatest aerospace engineer and the greatest genius in history. Working in Ascension. Plus I would withhold some technologies to give us an edge. We would have that as advantages, and they are considerable advantages.

To our disadvantage would be no history in aerospace. No space industries. No companies in aerospace. No infrastructure. No Space Agencies. Nothing at all in fact. Just nothing. Only nothingness.

But overall I would still see me as having the advantage.

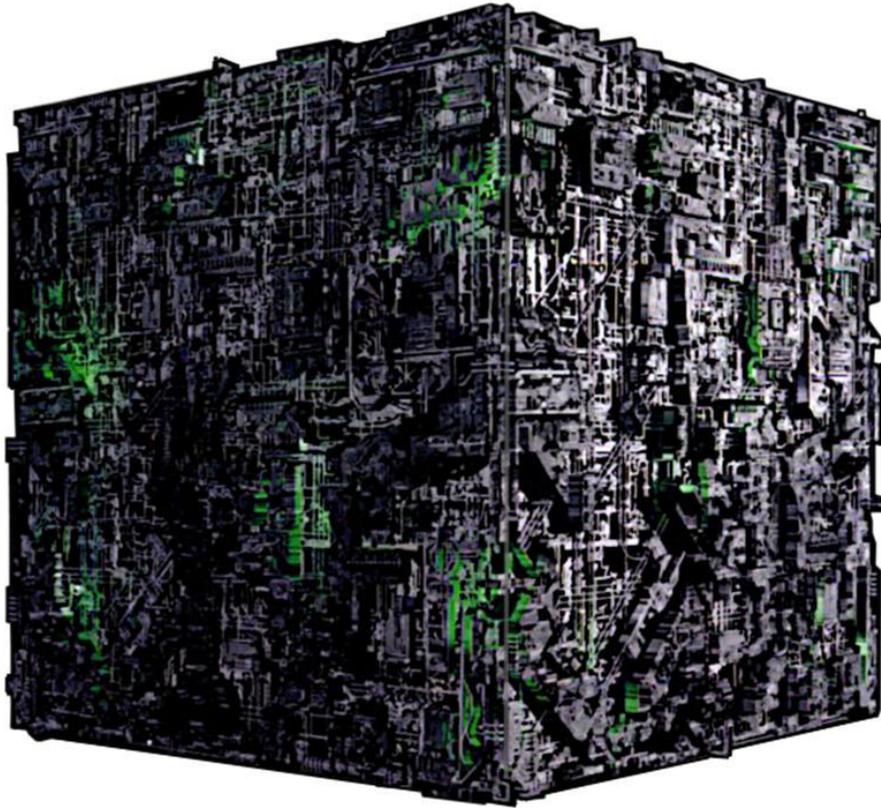

Overall I am still the one to beat

If we do this then we get a lower version of Golden Age now. Like a Sputnik version. Not Golden Age but we still salvage something.

And it helps set us up so that we do not miss the next window for Golden Age some years down the line.

Humanity has been set back decades. The consequences of missing Golden Age incomprehensible. But if we launch the Space Race as I suggest then it does give a way back in. Humanity could still go Golden Age in time.

And there would still be a chance of survival from annihilation by America's allies.

These guys

My Proposal for the Moon and Beyond

End of Part III